Description

If I open a table, I can click the share button (useful to see who it was shared with)

When I click "OK" or try to add someone, I receive a Big Fat Error. Bad usability policy.

If I have no rights to share, then either disable the options, or remove the button. In any case, it should not raise an error.

In addition, in the shared with users box, I see also a VRE (including some url) can the VRE's be listed in another box? And with a short name FAO Tuna Atlas would do.

I propose that I can share with other users, but publish to a VRE

I understand the disappointment and I share your view since this was already discussed internally many months ago. The needs of a user conflicts many times with the vision of the developers. Let's see if we can change this now as result of your feedback.

I just deployed on Nexus (and released also) a patched version of Workspace-Sharing-Widget including stylesheet fixed.
A minor glitch is still present regarding input-text and text-area due to following rule released in the file: tabulardataportlet.css

i.aui input, .aui textarea, .aui .uneditable-input { width: 100% !important;

but discussing with @g.panichi@isti.cnr.it about this, the rule seems important to perform correct rendering for TDM portlet

@g.panichi@isti.cnr.it please close the ticket if it works fine for you
